Google has today made some big changes to its Chrome browser for Mac with support for desktop apps and the addition of the Chrome App Launcher.

It is a convenient tool for accessing your content quickly. It also merges Chrome Apps and regular apps by allowing you to launch them more like a native program. This means these are pretty much native apps with full cloud support. What is the Chrome App Launcher? If you have used Chrome OS before, you have seen the Chrome App Launcher. Now, when you install a new Chrome app, the Chrome App Launcher will automatically add itself to your OS X dock so you don't need to open the browser window.
